

Lonnie Lee's TEEN IDOLs of the 50's

90 minute show

1959 was the year "Teen Idol" became the ultimate teenage mantra.

Teenage girls fainted and swooned at the mere sight of these trailblazing stars — the original 1950s movie and singing heartthrobs. With their dreamy eyes, long shiny Brylcreamed hair, and thick pouty lips, they defined a generation.

Elvis was the undisputed King and the ultimate Teen Idol, but he was far from alone. A whole court of handsome stars captured the hearts of young fans around the world.

Lonnie Lee's sensational new show, 'Teen Idols of the 50s', celebrates this golden era with a high-energy, non-stop performance packed with over 40 classic hits — including many Number 1s from the original stars as well as Lonnie's own timeless songs.

The show features the music of teenage heartthrobs such as Ricky Nelson, Crash Craddock, Buddy Holly, Johnny Cash, The Everly Brothers, Roy Orbison, Jerry Lee Lewis, Bobby Vee, Marty Robbins, Gene Vincent, Fabian, and Conway Twitty — and many more.

What makes this show truly unique and authentic is that Lonnie Lee wasn't just watching from the sidelines — he was one of them. As one of Australia's three most popular Teen Idols, he shared stages with many of these legends.

In 1960, he released his own hit, 'Teenage Idol'. From his first rockabilly band in 1957 through his incredible string of Top Ten hits in the late '50s and early '60s, Lonnie lived the dream.

To this day, both longtime fans and new audiences agree: he's better than ever. His boundless energy and powerful voice are the talk of every show.

In the eyes of the thousands who still adore him, he remains that same dreamy-eyed Teen Idol.

He's not just another singer performing these songs.

He was there. He shared the stage with them. He had hits at the same time as them.

He is the real deal — and sadly, the last man standing from that legendary era.
